

Kempton Steam creates a 'roaring' success

Kempton Steam Museum in West London hosts an exciting new production of film and music, The Brazen Roar

Saturday, 22nd June 2019 at Kempton Steam Museum, Snakey Lane, Hanworth, TW13 6XH. Over sixty young instrumentalists and singers from Hounslow Music Service joined players from the world-class Philharmonia Orchestra and trumpet soloist Gerard Presencer to perform The Brazen Roar, a new musical work composed by Siobhan Lamb. An animated film, supported by Chocolate Films and created by pupils from local school, Bolder Academy accompanied this unique and innovative composition, that resonates with man's relationship with power, choices and change.

"Kempton Steam Museum is immensely proud to host The Brazen Roar to celebrate our 90th Anniversary and is a first for us in the field of arts presentation" said Michael Hamilton, Chairman of Kempton Great Engines Trust. "With the help of professionals, the young musicians and film makers have brought the Museum's rich industrial and cultural heritage to life and I would like to thank everyone involved for making this highly creative event happen."

Invited guests included the Mayor of Spelthorne and Deputy Mayor of Hounslow as well as Sir Peter Bazalgette, great-great -grandson of the famous Victorian Civil Engineer, Sir Joseph Bazalgette, who was responsible for the design and engineering of a sewer network for central London in mid 1800s. Sir Peter Bazalgette commented "What a wonderful concert! The great engine hissed and then the band played a lovely piece by Siobhan Lamb...there were great parts for all the youthful singers and players."

The music concert was a strictly ticket only and the invited audience consisted of proud parents and relatives of the young performers. The Museum houses the world's largest operating triple expansion engine and stands 62 feet high and was 'in steam' at the beginning of the performance, creating an atmosphere of sheer awe and power that reverberated throughout the Museum. The Brazen Roar has been made possible thanks to grants from Arts Council England, London Music Fund and the Danish Composers Guild.
